

Soumitra Sana
Country President & Managing Director - Motorola India

Soumitra Sana, or Sammy, as he is popularly known, is the Country President of Motorola India and the Managing Director of Motorola's India Software Design Center. His key focus areas include providing strategic leadership to ensure growth of Motorola brand in India, and championing Motorola's vast business interests in the country including sales and manufacturing, and research & development across centers in Bangalore and Hyderabad.

Sammy has been a part of the Information and Communication Technology Industry for over 24 years and has held several strategic leadership positions of managing global engineering operations and development of Wireless and Broadband infrastructure in multiple geographies.

Sammy has been the leader of the founding team of Motorola's software design centre in India, and as Managing Director of the center, he oversees the operations of Motorola's largest software design center. This design center has become the most recognized and successful among Motorola's design centers.

Sammy Sana graduated from IIT Kharagpur, after which he spent fifteen years in Canada as manager of global development teams and hardware and software developer of wire-line Networking products. He returned to India in 1997 to lead Motorola's software R&D operations and has been at its helm since then.

An avid reader, Sammy's interests range from science and technology to history and biography. Gardening is his other passion. He lives in Bangalore with his wife and two children.

END